You Never Forget Your First
A Biography of George Washington
Alexis Coe

Alexis Coe deconstructs the myths and legends surrounding our first president to reveal he is not quite the man we remember. While young George Washington demanded military promotions, caused an international incident, and never backed down, everything changed after he married Martha. Washington became the kind of man who named his dog Sweetlips and hated to leave home. He took up arms against the British only when there was no other way, though he lost more battles than he won.

“If you think there is nothing new to learn about George Washington, then you have a treat in store with Alexis Coe’s You Never Forget Your First. In this keen and savage analysis of our longstanding Washington canon, Coe dramatically reshapes our understanding of the president who could not tell a lie (actually, he could, and did). The result is a humorous, sympathetic and refreshingly human portrait of Washington that is destined to become a classic.”
—Karen Abbott, author of The Ghosts of Eden Park

Stony the Road
Reconstruction, White Supremacy, and the Rise of Jim Crow
Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

An essential tour through one of America’s historical tragedies, Stony the Road tells the story of the struggle for equality during the century between the Civil War and the civil rights era. Henry Louis Gates, Jr., one of our leading chroniclers of the African-American experience, uncovers the roots of structural racism through a close reading of visual culture. While racist images reinforced a stark color line between white and black Americans, African Americans combatted it with a vision of a “New Negro” to force the nation to recognize their humanity. This battle took place during one of the most violent periods in our history, with thousands of black people murdered or lynched and many more afflicted by the degrading impositions of Jim Crow segregation. Gates tells a story of heroic resistance, as figures such as W.E. B. Du Bois and Ida B. Wells fought to create a counter-narrative and culture inside the lion’s mouth.

Begin Again

James Baldwin’s America and Its Urgent Lessons for Our Own

Eddie S. Glaude Jr.

We live, according to Eddie S. Glaude Jr., in the after times, the promise of Black Lives Matter challenged by the election of Donald Trump. We have been here before: For James Baldwin, the after times came in the wake of the civil rights movement, when a similar attempt to compel a national confrontation with the truth was answered with the murders of Medgar Evers, Malcolm X, and Martin Luther King, Jr. In these years, spanning from the publication of The Fire Next Time in 1963 to that of No Name in the Street in 1972, Baldwin transformed, at great professional and personal cost, into a more overtly political writer.

In the story of Baldwin’s crucible, Glaude suggests, we can find hope and guidance through our own after times. Mixing biography—drawn partially from newly uncovered interviews—with history, memoir, and trenchant analysis of our current moment, Begin Again is Glaude’s endeavor, following Baldwin, to bear witness to the difficult truth of race in America today.

The Presidents vs. the Press

The Endless Battle between the White House and the Media— from the Founding Fathers to Fake News

Harold Holzer

“The FAKE NEWS media,” Donald Trump has tweeted, “is not my enemy. It is the enemy of the American people.” In this remarkable new account, acclaimed scholar Harold Holzer guides readers through the clashes between chief executives and journalists, a conflict as old as the republic itself. From George Washington to Trump, presidents have quarreled with, attacked, denigrated, and manipulated the fourth estate.

Washington groused about his treatment in the newspapers, but his successor, John Adams, actually wielded his executive power to overturn press freedoms and prosecute critical reporters. Thomas Jefferson tapped a reporter to find dirt on his rival, Alexander Hamilton. Andrew Jackson rewarded loyal newspapers with government contracts; Abraham Lincoln shuttered critical papers and imprisoned their editors without trial. FDR and JFK charmed journalists in order to protect their personal secrets, while Nixon cast the press as a public enemy for daring to investigate his own.

Chief Seattle and the Town That Took His Name
The Change of Worlds for the Native People and Settlers on Puget Sound
David M. Buerge

When the British, Spanish, and then Americans arrived in the Pacific Northwest, it may have appeared to them as an untamed wilderness. In fact, it was a fully settled and populated land. Chief Seattle was a powerful representative from this very ancient world. Historian David Buerge has threaded together disparate accounts of the time from the 1780s to the 1860s, including native oral histories, Hudson Bay Company records, pioneer diaries, French Catholic church records, and historic newspaper reporting.

Supreme Inequality
The Supreme Court’s Fifty-Year Battle for a More Unjust America
Adam Cohen

In Supreme Inequality, Adam Cohen surveys the most significant Supreme Court rulings since the Nixon era and exposes the modern Court as one of the leading forces behind the nation’s soaring level of economic inequality. Contrary to what Americans like to believe, the Court does little to protect the rights of the poor and disadvantaged. This institution—revered as a source of fairness—has been systematically making America less fair for the past fifty years.

The Black Book
Middleton A. Harris, with the assistance of Morris Levitt, Roger Furman, and Ernest Smith; Foreword and preface by Toni Morrison

In 1974, Middleton A. Harris and Toni Morrison led a team of collectors in compiling nearly 500 images—from 19th-century slave auction notices to Antebellum reward posters for capturing runaway slaves—into a comprehensive record of the black experience in America from 1619 through the 1940s. Now in a new edition featuring a foreword and original poem by Morrison, The Black Book honors the past as a vital link to the richness and diversity of African American history and culture.

Union
The Struggle to Forge the Story of United States Nationhood
Colin Woodard
Union tells the story of the struggle to create a myth of national unity for the United States. A small group of historians, political leaders, and novelists promoted a history that attempted to transcend and erase the differences and tensions between the nation’s regional cultures. This emerging nationalist story was immediately and powerfully contested by those who argued that the United States was an ethno-state, the homeland of the allegedly superior “Anglo-Saxon” race.

The World
A Brief Introduction
Richard Haass
This invaluable primer from Richard Haass, president of the Council on Foreign Relations, is designed to empower more informed, discerning citizens, better able to arrive at sound, independent judgments and to hold elected representatives to account. Global literacy is deeply necessary, and this is a critical time for college students and others to understand what is taking place around the world, why it is taking place, and how it will affect our lives. Toward these ends, The World focuses on essential history, what makes each region of the world tick, the many challenges globalization presents, and the most influential countries, events, and ideas. Explaining complex ideas with wisdom and clarity, The World is an evergreen book that will remain relevant and useful even as history continues to unfold.

“This is the book that explains how the world really works, how it is changing, and why it matters. Just what every citizen and student needs to read.”
—Madeleine Albright

Enemy of All Mankind
A True Story of Piracy, Power, and History’s First Global Manhunt
Steven Johnson
Henry Every was the seventeenth century’s most notorious pirate. The press published wildly popular—and wildly inaccurate—reports of his nefarious adventures; the British government offered enormous bounties for his capture, alive or (preferably) dead. But Steven Johnson, author of The Ghost Map, argues that Every’s most lasting legacy was his inadvertent triggering of a major shift in the global economy. Enemy of All Mankind focuses on one key event—the attack on an Indian treasure ship by Every and his crew—and its surprising repercussions. Johnson uses the extraordinary story of Henry Every and his crimes to explore the emergence of the East India Company, the British Empire, and the modern global marketplace: a densely interconnected planet ruled by nations and corporations. He explains how this unlikely pirate and his notorious crime ended up playing a key role in the birth of multinational capitalism.

The Splendid and the Vile
A Saga of Churchill, Family, and Defiance During the Blitz
Erik Larson

Drawing on diaries, original archival documents, and once-secret intelligence reports—some released only recently—Larson provides a new lens on London’s darkest year through the day-to-day experience of Winston Churchill and his family.

For the 12 months following Churchill’s election as Prime Minister, Hitler waged a relentless bombing campaign, killing 45,000 Britons. It was up to Churchill to hold his country together and persuade President Franklin Roosevelt that Britain was a worthy ally—and willing to fight to the end. Starting from this place of near-impossible odds, The Splendid and the Vile details the tenacity of Churchill as he led his country with eloquence, courage, and perseverance through the unrelenting horror of the Blitz.

“Larson’s skill at integrating vast research and talent for capturing compelling human dramas culminate in an inspirational portrait of one of history’s finest, most fearless leaders.”—Booklist (starred review)

How to Feed a Dictator
Saddam Hussein, Idi Amin, Enver Hoxha, Fidel Castro, and Pol Pot Through the Eyes of Their Cooks
Witold Szablowski;
Translated by Antonia Lloyd-Jones

What was Pol Pot eating while two million Cambodians were dying of hunger? Did Idi Amin really eat human flesh? And why was Fidel Castro obsessed with one particular cow?

Traveling across four continents, from the ruins of Iraq to the savannahs of Kenya, Witold Szablowski tracked down the personal chefs of five dictators known for the oppression and massacre of their own citizens: Iraq’s Saddam Hussein, Uganda’s Idi Amin, Albania’s Enver Hoxha, Cuba’s Fidel Castro, and Cambodia’s Pol Pot—and listened to their stories over sweet-and-sour soup, goat-meat pilaf, bottles of rum, and games of gin rummy. Dishy yet dead serious, How to Feed a Dictator provides a knife’s-edge view of life under tyranny.

“Its originality and topicality in a world increasingly governed by political strongmen [are] intriguing. . . . The author shares intimate historical insights into the meaning of life under dictatorship.”—Kirkus Reviews

Burns, the former Ambassador to Russia and Jordan for the U.S. Foreign Service, writes accessibly on a wide range of topics, including issues central to international relations theory as well as the shaping of public policy across the 20th century, all while laying out a comprehensive and accessibly-written history of American diplomacy.

The History Makers
2500 Years of Who We Are
Richard Cohen

There are many stories we can spin about years gone by, but which accounts come to be told, and by whom? In The History Makers, Cohen reveals how professional historians, major novelists, dramatists, journalists, political propagandists, and even the writers of the Bible have and continue to influence the accepted records of human experience. Is there, he asks, even such a thing as “objective” history? And what is it to call someone a historian in the first place?

The Last Libertines
Benedetta Craveri, translated from the Italian by Aaron Kerner

An enthralling work of history about the Libertine generation that came up during—and was eventually destroyed by—the French Revolution. The Last Libertines, as Benedetta Craveri writes in her preface to the book, “tells the story of a group of young aristocrats living in the last days of the French monarchy, when it was still possible for the members of the elite to reconcile a way of life based on status and privilege with a belief, born of the Enlightenment, in the necessity for social transformation and the new ideals of justice, tolerance, and civility.”
The Cubans
Ordinary Lives in Extraordinary Times
Anthony DePalma

Anthony DePalma paints a vibrant portrait of a Cuban neighborhood’s evolution over the last twenty years.

“Finally, a book not about Fidel, Raúl, or Ché Guevara, but about Cary, Pipo, Oscar, and other ordinary Cubans who tell not the history we have been fed for years but the real, remarkable, and complicated stories of people…DePalma has surely become the best chronicler of Cuba today.”—Mirta Ojito, author of Finding Mañana: A Memoir of a Cuban Exodus

Iris Origo, introduction by Charles Nicholl
This extraordinary re-creation of the life of the medieval Italian merchant Francesco di Marco Datini is one of the greatest historical portraits written in the 20th century. Drawing on an astonishing cache of 150,000 letters unearthed centuries after Datini’s death, The Merchant of Prato reveals a shrewd, enterprising, anxious man as he makes deals, buys silks for his outspoken young wife, and broods on his legacy. It is an unequalled source of knowledge about the texture of daily life in 14th century Tuscany.

Empires of the Sky
Zeppelins, Airplanes, and Two Men’s Epic Duel to Rule the World
Alexander Rose
At the dawn of the 20th century, Germany’s Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin vied with the Wright Brothers to build the world’s first successful flying machine. As the Wrights labored to invent the airplane, Zeppelin fathered the remarkable airship, sparking a bitter rivalry between the two types of aircraft and their innovators that would last for decades. Empires of the Sky is the sweeping, untold tale of the duel that transformed the world and helped create our modern age.

D-Day Girls
The Spies Who Armed the Resistance, Sabotaged the Nazis, and Helped Win World War II
Sarah Rose
Rigorously researched and written with razor-sharp wit, D-Day Girls is the untold story of the women recruited by Britain’s elite spy agency who paved the way for Allied victory.
“Sarah Rose’s D-Day Girls is . . . a highly relevant read that will, at long last, inscribe the names of three remarkable female spies—Andrée Borrel, Odette Sansom, Lise de Baissac—into our history books.”—Susannah Cahalan, author of Brain on Fire

The Common Wind
Afro-American Currents in the Age of the Haitian Revolution
Julius S. Scott
The Common Wind is a gripping and colorful account of the intercontinental networks that tied together the free and enslaved masses of the New World. Having delved deep into the gray obscurity of official eighteenth-century records in Spanish, English, and French, Julius S. Scott has written a powerful “history from below.” Scott follows the spread of “rumors of emancipation” and the people behind them, bringing to life the protagonists in the slave revolution.

Cities
The First 6,000 Years
Monica L. Smith
Six thousand years ago, there were no cities on the planet. Today, more than half of the world’s population lives in urban areas, and that number is growing. Weaving together archaeology, history, and contemporary observations, Monica Smith explains the rise of the first urban developments and their connection to our own.
“Smith tells the story of how we built the cities that made everything else possible.”—Edward Glaeser, author of Triumph of the City

Women Warriors
An Unexpected History
Pamela D. Toler
The woman warrior is always cast as an anomaly—Joan of Arc, not Gl Jane. But women, it turns out, have always gone to war. In this fascinating and lively world history, Pamela Toler not only introduces us to women who took up arms, she also shows why they did it and what happened when they stepped out of their traditional female roles to take on other identities. Among the warriors you’ll meet are: Tomyris, Boudica, The Joshigun, Lakshmi Bai, Juana Azurduy de Padilla, and many more.

Square Haunting
Five Writers in London Between the Wars
Francesca Wade
In the pivotal era between the two world wars, Mecklenburgh Square was home to students, struggling artists, and revolutionaries, among them modernist poet H. D., detective novelist Dorothy L. Sayers, classicist Jane Harrison, economic historian Eileen Power, and author and publisher Virginia Woolf. Francesca Wade sheds new light on this group of artists and thinkers whose pioneering work would enrich the possibilities of women’s lives for generations to come.

The Dispossessed
A Story of Asylum at the US-Mexico Border and Beyond
John Washington

The Dispossessed tells the story of a twenty-four-year-old Salvadoran man, Arnovis, whose family’s search for safety shows how the United States—in concert with other Western nations—has gutted asylum protections for the world’s most vulnerable. Crisscrossing the border and Central America, John Washington traces one man’s quest for asylum. Arnovis is separated from his daughter by US Border Patrol agents and struggles to find security after being repeatedly deported to a gang-ruled community in El Salvador, traumatic experiences relayed by Washington with vivid intensity.

Between Two Fires
Truth, Ambition, and Compromise in Putin’s Russia
Joshua Yaffa

The New Yorker Moscow correspondent Joshua Yaffa introduces readers to some of contemporary Russia’s most remarkable figures who have built their careers and constructed their identities in the shadow of the Putin system. By showing how citizens shape their lives around the demands of a capricious and frequently repressive state—as often by choice as under threat of force—Yaffa offers urgent lessons about the true nature of modern authoritarianism.

Tiananmen 1989: Our Shattered Hopes
Lun Zhang; Adrien Gombeaud; Ameziane

Over 30 years ago, on April 15th 1989, the occupation of Tiananmen Square began. As students and Chinese citizens took to the streets demanding political reforms, the fate of China’s communist system was unknown. When reports of soldiers marching into Beijing to suppress the protests reverberated across Western airwaves, the world didn’t know what to expect. Lun Zhang was just a young sociology teacher then, in charge of management and safety service for the protests.
