A Black Women's History of the United States

Daina Ramey Berry and Kali Nicole Gross

A vibrant and empowering history that emphasizes the perspectives and stories of African American women to show how they are—and have always been—instrumental in shaping our country. In centering Black women's stories, two award-winning historians seek both to empower African American women and to show their allies that Black women's unique ability to make their own communities while combatting centuries of oppression is an essential component in our continued resistance to systemic racism and sexism. Daina Ramey Berry and Kali Nicole Gross offer an examination and celebration of Black womanhood, beginning with the first African women who arrived in what became the United States to African American women of today.

As Long as Grass Grows

The Indigenous Fight for Environmental Justice, from Colonization to Standing Rock
Dina Gilio-Whitaker

Through the unique lens of “Indigenized environmental justice,” Indigenous researcher and activist Dina Gilio-Whitaker explores the fraught history of treaty violations, struggles for food and water security, and protection of sacred sites, while highlighting the important leadership of Indigenous women in this centuries-long struggle. As Long As Grass Grows gives readers an accessible history of Indigenous resistance to government and corporate incursions on their lands and offers new approaches to environmental justice activism and policy.

“As Long as Grass Grows is a hallmark book of our time. By confronting climate change from an Indigenous perspective, not only does Gilio-Whitaker look at the history of Indigenous resistance to environmental colonization, but she points to a way forward beyond Western conceptions of environmental justice—toward decolonization as the only viable solution.”—Nick Estes, author of Our History Is the Future

A Promised Land

Barack Obama

In the stirring, highly anticipated first volume of his presidential memoirs, Barack Obama tells the story of his improbable odyssey from young man searching for his identity to leader of the free world, describing in strikingly personal detail both his political education and the landmark moments of the first term of his historic presidency—a time of dramatic transformation and turmoil. Reflecting on the presidency, Obama offers a unique and thoughtful exploration of both the awesome reach and the limits of presidential power, as well as singular insights into the dynamics of U.S. partisan politics and international diplomacy.

A Promised Land is the story of one man's bet with history, the faith of a community organizer tested on the world stage, capturing Barack Obama's conviction that democracy is not a gift from on high but something founded on empathy and common understanding and built together, day by day.

Caste

The Origins of Our Discontents

Isabel Wilkerson

Beyond race, class, or other factors, there is a powerful caste system that influences people's lives and behavior and the nation's fate. Linking the caste systems of America, India, and Nazi Germany, Wilkerson explores eight pillars that underlie caste systems across civilizations, including divine will, bloodlines, stigma, and more. Using riveting stories about people—including Martin Luther King, Jr., baseball's Satchel Paige, a single father and his toddler son, Wilkerson herself, and many others—she shows the ways that the insidious undertow of caste is experienced every day. Beautifully written, original, and revealing, Caste is an eye-opening story of people and history, and a reexamination of what lies under the surface of ordinary lives and of American life today.

"[A]n instant American classic and almost certainly the keynote nonfiction book of the American century thus far."—The New York Times

Evil Geniuses

The Unmaking of America: A Recent History

Kurt Andersen

Beginning in the early 1970s, by means of a long war conceived of and executed by a confederacy of big business CEOs, the superrich, and right-wing zealots, the rules and norms that made the American middle class possible were undermined and dismantled. Why and how did America take such a wrong turn? In this deeply researched and brilliantly woven cultural, economic, and political chronicle, Kurt Andersen offers a fresh, provocative, and eye-opening history of America's undoing.

Conflagration

How the Transcendentalists Sparked the American Struggle for Racial, Gender, and Social Justice

John A. Buehrens

Conflagration illuminates the connections between key members of the Transcendentalist circle who created a community dedicated to radical social activism. The Transcendentalists' passion for social equality stemmed from their belief in spiritual friendship—transcending differences in social situation, gender, class, theology, and race. Together, their fight for justice changed the American sociopolitical landscape.

The Virginia Dynasty

Four Presidents and the Creation of the American Nation

Lynne Cheney

Focusing on the first four Virginia presidents—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe—Cheney offers a concise and original exploration of how the United States came to be.

“This wonderfully readable narrative explores [four presidents’] complex relations with each other and the way they wrestled imperfectly with reconciling their ideal of liberty with their lives as slaveholders. The values and flaws they ingrained in our nation are with us still today.” —Walter Isaacson

Catching the Wind

Edward Kennedy and the Liberal Hour, 1932-1975

Neal Gabler

Catching the Wind is the first volume of Neal Gabler’s magisterial two-volume biography of Edward Kennedy, at once a history of American politics in the late 20th and early 21st centuries and a study of political morality and the role it played in the tortuous course of liberalism. Gabler tells a story that is Shakespearean in its dimensions: the story of a star-crossed figure who rises above his seeming limitations and the tragedy that envelopes him to change the face of America.

City at the Edge of Forever

Los Angeles Reimagined

Peter Lunenfeld

How did Los Angeles start the 20th century as a dusty frontier town and end up a century later as one of the globe’s supercities with unparalleled cultural, economic, and technological reach? UCLA professor Lunenfeld weaves together the city’s art, architecture, and design, juxtaposes its entertainment and literary histories, and moves from restaurant kitchens to recording studios to ultra-secret research labs. In the process, he reimagines Los Angeles as simultaneously an exemplar and cautionary tale for the 21st century.

His Truth Is Marching On

John Lewis and the Power of Hope

Jon Meacham; Afterword by John Lewis

John Lewis, who at age 25 marched in Selma, Alabama, and was beaten on the Edmund Pettus Bridge, was a visionary and a man of faith. Drawing on decades of wide-ranging interviews with Lewis, Jon Meacham writes of how this great-grandson of a slave and son of an Alabama tenant farmer was inspired by the Bible and his teachers in nonviolence, including Martin Luther King, Jr., to put his life on the line in the service of what Abraham Lincoln called “the better angels of our nature.”

The Violence Inside Us

A Brief History of an Ongoing American Tragedy

Chris Murphy

Is America destined to always be a violent nation? This sweeping history by U.S. senator Chris Murphy explores the origins of our violent impulses, the roots of our obsession with firearms, and the mythologies that prevent us from confronting our national crisis.

“In this important and necessary book, Senator Murphy adeptly uses science, history, and his own experiences to present an honest, thoughtful picture of violence in America. Even more critical, this book is a call to action that rings with eloquence and tremendous moral clarity.”—John King, Jr., former U.S. secretary of education

Abe

Abraham Lincoln in His Times

David S. Reynolds

From one of the great historians of nineteenth-century America, a revelatory biography that brings Lincoln to life within his turbulent age. Immersing readers in the riotous tumult of American life in the decades before the Civil War, Reynolds explores how Lincoln was shaped by his times, yet managed to shape them to an extent few could have foreseen.

"A work of literary distinction as well as sound scholarship, this biography will take its place as a classic in Lincoln studies."—James M. McPherson

George Marshall

Defender of the Republic

David L. Roll

A defining account of the extraordinary career of one of America's most consequential leaders.

"David Roll's George Marshall couldn't come at a more crucial time. There's a growing conviction among Americans that their country no longer produces strategists and statesmen of Marshall's stature. Thanks to new sources on the general's life and the military establishment through which he rose, this thorough, balanced, and wise book goes far in assessing that claim."—John Lewis Gaddis

American Rule

How a Nation Conquered the World but Failed Its People

Jared Yates Sexton

In this stirring and deeply researched book, Sexton lays bare the foundational myths at the heart of our collective American imagination. From the very origins of this nation, Americans in power have abused and subjugated others; enabling that corruption are the many myths of American exceptionalism and steadfast values. Working through each era of American growth and change, Sexton weaves together the origins and perpetuation of these narratives in the public memory, and the acts we have chosen to forget.

The Contamination of the Earth

A History of Pollutions in the Industrial Age
François Jarrige and Thomas Le Roux

Through the centuries, the march of economic progress has been accompanied by the spread of industrial pollution. As our capacities for production and our aptitude for consumption have increased, so have their byproducts—chemical contamination from fertilizers and pesticides, diesel emissions, oil spills, a vast "plastic continent" found floating in the ocean. The Contamination of the Earth offers a social and political history of industrial pollution, mapping its trajectories over three centuries, from the toxic wastes of early tanneries to the fossil fuel energy regime of the twentieth century.

"The Contamination of the Earth is not a balanced view of technological progress; that is not its purpose. It is a clear and relentless exposure of the forces that have converged to ravage our environment. And it should prompt scientists and citizens to ask: am I complicit in this system? Or will I try to stand against it?"—Nature

The Last Million

Europe's Displaced Persons
from World War to Cold War

David Nasaw

The award-winning historian examines the million-plus displaced persons left behind in Germany: Jews, Poles, Estonians, Latvians, Lithuanians, Ukrainians, and other Eastern Europeans who refused to go home or had no homes to return to. The Last Million would spend the next three to five years in displaced persons camps, temporary homelands in exile, divided by nationality, with their own police forces, churches and synagogues, schools, newspapers, theaters, and infirmaries.

"Describes in meticulously researched detail what happened to the [displaced persons] who felt... that they could not go back to the lands of their birth."

Tiananmen 1989

Our Shattered Hopes

Lun Zhang; Adrien Gombeaud; Ameziane

On April 15th 1989, the occupation of Tiananmen Square began. As tens of thousands of students and concerned Chinese citizens took to the streets demanding political reforms, the fate of China's communist system was unknown. When reports of soldiers marching into Beijing to suppress the protests reverberated across Western airwaves, the world didn't know what to expect. Lun Zhang was just a young sociology teacher then, in charge of management and safety service for the protests. Providing comprehensive coverage of the 1989 protests that ended in bloodshed and drew global scrutiny, Zhang includes context for these explosive events, sympathetically depicting a world of discontented, idealistic, activist Chinese youth rarely portrayed in Western media. Many voices and viewpoints are on display, from Western journalists to Chinese administrators.

Eat the Buddha

Life and Death in a Tibetan Town

Barbara Demick

Eat the Buddha spans decades of modern Tibetan and Chinese history, as told through the private lives of Demick's subjects. All of them face the same dilemma: Do they resist the Chinese, or do they join them? Do they adhere to Buddhist teachings of compassion and nonviolence, or do they fight? Demick reveals what it is really like to be a Tibetan in the 21st century, trying to preserve one's culture, faith, and language against all odds.

A Good Provider Is One Who Leaves

One Family and Migration in the 21st Century

Jason DeParle

The definitive chronicle of our new age of global migration, told through the multi-generational saga of a Filipino family, by a veteran New York Times reporter and two-time Pulitzer Prize finalist.

"No matter your politics or home country this will change how you think about the movement of people between poor and rich countries . . . one of the best books on immigration written in a generation."
—Matthew Desmond, author of Evicted

Café Europa Revisited

How to Survive Post-Communism

Slavenka Drakulić

An evocative and timely collection of essays that paints a portrait of Eastern Europe thirty years after the end of communism. Slavenka Drakulić, the author of Café Europa and A Guided Tour of the Museum of Communism, takes a look at daily life in the former Soviet bloc to illuminate what has changed and what has remained the same in the region.

Time of the Magicians

Wittgenstein, Benjamin, Cassirer, Heidegger, and the Decade That Reinvented Philosophy

Wolfram Eilenberger

A grand narrative of the intertwining lives of four major philosophers whose ideas—developed in the decade following World War I—shaped the twentieth century.

“[Eilenberger] patiently draws these four intellectual magi out of the shadows of their writings, which often tend toward complete opacity. The result is not a book of academic philosophy but rather an intellectual history that largely succeeds in bringing philosophy to life.”—The New York Times Book Review

Surviving Autocracy

Masha Gessen

“Gessen’s decades-long experience covering the resurgence of totalitarianism in Russia puts [her] in a unique position to help Americans understand what is happening to the United States under President Donald Trump. . . . Gessen shows us that having the language to understand what is happening is the first step to surviving, and ultimately resisting, an autocratic future.”—The Nation

Enemy of All Mankind

A True Story of Piracy, Power, and History’s First Global Manhunt

Steven Johnson

Johnson, author of The Ghost Map, uses the extraordinary story of pirate Henry Every and his crimes to explore the emergence of the East India Company, the British Empire, and the modern global marketplace.

“A kaleidoscopic rumination on the ways in which a single event, and the actions of a handful of men with no obvious access to the levers of state power, can change the course of history.”—The New York Times Book Review

The Global Age

Europe 1950-2017

Ian Kershaw

From the acclaimed author of To Hell and Back comes the final chapter in the Penguin History of Europe series. The Global Age offers a panorama of European history from 1950 to 2017, capturing post-world war anxieties, nuclear threats, financial crises, and accelerating globalization. Drawing on examples from all across Europe, Ian Kershaw delivers a portrait of the recent past and present, as well as a cautious look into our future.

Money for Nothing

The Scientists, Fraudsters, and Corrupt Politicians Who Reinvented Money, Panicked a Nation, and Made the World Rich

Thomas Levenson

At the dawn of the 18th century, England was running out of money due to a prolonged war with France. In the hub of London's stock market, the South Sea Company hatched a scheme to turn pieces of the national debt into shares of company stock, and over the spring of 1720 the plan worked brilliantly. This new world of finance, drawing on ideas from the Scientific Revolution, had the potential to save the nation—but only if it didn't bankrupt it first.

Agent Sonya

Moscow's Most Daring Wartime Spy

Ben Macintyre

This true-life spy story is a masterpiece about the woman code-named "Sonya." Her story reflects the great ideological clash of the 20th century—between Communism, Fascism, and Western democracy—and casts new light on the spy battles and shifting allegiances of our own times. With unparalleled access to Sonya's diaries and correspondence and never-before-seen information on her clandestine activities, Ben Macintyre has conjured a history of a legendary secret agent.

War

How Conflict Shaped Us

Margaret MacMillan

Margaret MacMillan looks at the ways in which war has influenced human society and how, in turn, changes in political organization, technology, or ideologies have affected how and why we fight. Drawing on lessons from wars throughout the past, from classical history to the present day, MacMillan reveals the many faces of war—the way it has determined our past, our future, our views of the world, and our very conception of ourselves.

Leadership in War

Essential Lessons from Those Who Made History

Andrew Roberts

Taking us from the French Revolution to the Cold War, Andrew Roberts presents a bracingly honest and deeply insightful look at nine major figures in modern history: Napoleon Bonaparte, Horatio Nelson, Winston Churchill, Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, George C. Marshall, Charles de Gaulle, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Margaret Thatcher. In this meticulously researched work, Roberts presents readers with fresh, complex portraits of leaders who approached war with different tactics and weapons, but with the common goal of success in the face of battle.

How Fascism Works

The Politics of Us and Them

Jason Stanley

A renowned philosopher and scholar of propaganda, Jason Stanley reveals the 10 pillars of fascist politics—the language and beliefs that separate people into an “us” and a “them.” He knits together reflections on history, philosophy, sociology, and critical race theory with stories from contemporary Hungary, India, and the United States, among other nations. Only by recognizing fascist politics, he argues, may we resist its most harmful effects and return to democratic ideals.

Work

A Deep History, from the Stone Age to the Age of Robots

James Suzman

In this revolutionary new history of humankind through the prism of work, leading anthropologist James Suzman challenges some of our deepest assumptions about who we are. Drawing insights from anthropology, archaeology, evolutionary biology, zoology, physics, and economics, he shows that while we have evolved to find joy, meaning, and purpose in work, for most of human history our ancestors worked far less and thought very differently about work than we do now.
