Twilight in Hazard

An Appalachian Reckoning

Alan Maimon

While reporting on the intense religious allegiances, the bitter, bareknuckled political rivalries, and the faltering attempts to emerge from a century-long coal-based economy, Maimon learns that everything—and nothing—you have heard about Central Appalachia is true. Resisting the easy clichés, Maimon's Twilight in Hazard gives us a profound understanding of the region from his years of careful reporting. It is both a powerful chronicle of a reporter's immersion in a place, and of his return years later—this time as the husband of a Harlan County coal miner's daughter—to find the area struggling with its identity.

The Behavioral Code

The Hidden Ways the Law Makes Us Better or Worse

Benjamin van Rooij and Adam Fine

Professors Benjamin van Rooij and Adam Fine present the first accessible analysis of behavioral jurisprudence, which will fundamentally alter how we understand the connection between law and human behavior.

"This brilliant and foundational text, beautifully written and compelling, will launch a long-needed movement for a much more empirically based and practically focused approach to the many critical dimensions of regulation that the law must advance."—Lawrence Lessig, Roy L. Furman Professor of Law and Leadership, Harvard Law School

Every Human Intention

Japan in the New Century

Dreux Richard

Through an exceptional range of approaches to an exceptionally complex society, Every Human Intention provides an understanding of today's Japan that goes far beyond politics, truisms, and accepted wisdom.

"Every Human Intention is an absolute marvel, revealing the inner workings of modern-day Japan like no other work of literary nonfiction I have ever read. And it does so three different times: with immigration, elder care, and nuclear energy."—Richard Wiley, author of Soldiers in Hiding

Voices from the Pandemic

Americans Tell Their Stories of Crisis, Courage and Resilience

Eli Saslow

Voices from the Pandemic is a cathartic oral history of a country grappling with the Covid-19 pandemic—from fear and overwhelm to extraordinary resilience—told through voices of people from all across America. The Covid-19 pandemic was a world-shattering event, affecting everyone in the nation. From its first ominous stirrings, renowned journalist Eli Saslow began interviewing a cross-section of Americans, capturing their experiences in real time. Through Saslow's empathetic interviewing, he gives a kaleidoscopic picture of a people dealing with the unimaginable.

The Plague Year

America in the Time of Covid

Lawrence Wright

The Plague Year is an unprecedented, momentous account of Covid-19—its origins, its wide-ranging repercussions, and the ongoing global fight to contain it.

“Arresting. . . . Lean-limbed, immersive. . . . Rich with peerless reportage and incisive critique. . . . Translates the complexities of epidemiology into plain English. . . . Wright is at his commanding best . . . when he places the pandemic in historical context—his detours into the Black Plague and the 1918 Spanish flu are narrative marvels—and in his portraits of the players.”—Hamilton Cain, Minneapolis Star Tribune

Empire of Pain

The Secret History of the Sackler Dynasty

Patrick Radden Keefe

Empire of Pain is a devastating portrait of three generations of the Sackler family, famed for their philanthropy, whose fortune was built by Valium and whose reputation was destroyed by OxyContin.

“Put simply, this book will make your blood boil. . . . A devastating portrait of a family consumed by greed and unwilling to take the slightest responsibility or show the least sympathy for what it wrought. . . . A highly readable and disturbing narrative.”—John Carreyrou, The New York Times Book Review

Nudge

The Final Edition

Richard H. Thaler and Cass R. Sunstein

An essential new edition revised and updated from cover to cover of one of the most important books of the last two decades, by Nobel Prize winner Richard H. Thaler and Cass R. Sunstein. This new edition offers a wealth of new insights about a wide variety of issues that we face in our daily lives—all while honoring one of the cardinal rules of nudging: make it fun!

“Few books can be said to have changed the world, but Nudge did. The Final Edition is marvelous: funny, useful, and wise.”—Daniel Kahneman, author of Thinking, Fast and Slow

Rationality

What It Is, Why It Seems Scarce, Why It Matters

Steven Pinker

Today humanity is reaching new heights of scientific understanding—and also appears to be losing its mind. How can a species that developed vaccines for Covid-19 in less than a year produce so much fake news, medical quackery, and conspiracy theorizing? Rationality explores how the rational pursuit of self-interest, sectarian solidarity, and uplifting mythology can add up to crippling irrationality in a society.

“Pinker is a paragon of exactly the kind of intellectual honesty and courage we need to restore conversation and community.”—David Brooks, The New York Times

The Rage of Innocence

How America Criminalizes Black Youth

Kristin Henning

Kristin Henning gives a brilliant analysis of the foundations of racist policing in America, including the day-to-day brutalities that are endured by Black youth growing up under constant surveillance and the persistent threat of physical and psychological abuse by police.

“We’ve long needed a great book on race and the juvenile legal system. Thanks to Kris Henning, we have it. Deeply researched and passionately argued, The Rage of Innocence details how we criminalize Black children—and explains how we can stop.”
—James Forman, Jr., J. Skelly Wright Professor of Law, Yale Law School, and Pulitzer-prize winning author of Locking Up Our Own

“Henning’s vividly told stories, meticulous research, and trenchant analysis teach us just how widespread the pernicious mistreatment of children of color in contemporary America is—not just on the streets, but in our schools, courts, and social institutions.”—Laurence Steinberg, Distinguished University Professor of Psychology, Temple University

The problem is not police training, police diversity, or police methods. The problem is policing itself.

Alex S. Vitale

The End of Policing

Updated edition

The End of Policing

Alex Vitale

Recent years have seen an explosion of protest and concern about police brutality and repression. This book attempts to jog public discussion of policing by revealing the tainted origins of modern policing as a tool of social control and demonstrating how the expanded role of the police is inconsistent with community empowerment, social justice—even public safety. Drawing on first-hand research from across the globe, Alex Vitale shows how the implementation of alternatives to policing, like drug legalization, regulation, and harm reduction instead of the policing of drugs, has led to reductions in crime, spending, and injustice.

My Time Will Come

A Memoir of Crime, Punishment, Hope, and Redemption

Ian Manuel

In 1991, Ian Manuel, then fourteen, was sentenced to life without parole for a non-homicide crime. Capturing the fullness of his humanity, here is Manuel's powerful testimony of growing up homeless in Central Park Village in Tampa, Florida—a neighborhood riddled with poverty, gang violence, and drug abuse—and of his efforts to rise above his circumstances, only to find himself, partly through his own actions, imprisoned for two-thirds of his life, eighteen years of which were spent in solitary confinement. Full of unexpected twists and turns as it describes a struggle to attain redemption, My Time Will Come is a paean to the capacity of the human will to transcend adversity through determination and art.

"Ian is magic. His story is difficult and heartbreaking, but he takes us places we need to go to understand why we must do better."—Bryan Stevenson, author of Just Mercy

When Truth Is All You Have

A Memoir of Faith, Justice, and Freedom for the Wrongly Convicted

Jim McCloskey with Philip Lerman

NOW IN PAPERBACK

While enrolled at Princeton Theological Seminary in 1980, Jim McCloskey's first assignment was as a chaplain at Trenton State Prison. Jorge de los Santos, who had been convicted of murder, swore that he was innocent and, coming to believe him, McCloskey threw himself into the case. Two years later, Jorge de los Santos walked free, fully exonerated.

McCloskey established Centurion Ministries, the first group in America devoted to overturning wrongful convictions. Together with his staff and a team of forensic experts, lawyers, and volunteers Centurion has freed 65 innocent prisoners who had been sentenced to life imprisonment or death.

"Jim McCloskey and Centurion are pioneers in the struggle to expose the tragedy of innocent people wrongly convicted and sent to prison in America. . . . No one has illuminated this problem more thoughtfully and persistently than Rev. McCloskey and his extraordinary team at Centurion."—Bryan Stevenson, author of Just Mercy

A Knock at Midnight

A Story of Hope, Justice, and Freedom

Brittany K. Barnett

Brittany K. Barnett was only a law student when she came across the case that would change her life forever—that of Sharanda Jones, a single mother serving a life sentence without parole for a first-time drug offense. Moved by Sharanda's plight, Brittany set to work to gain her freedom. Brittany's riveting memoir is at once a coming-of-age story and a powerful evocation of what it takes to bring hope and justice to a system built to resist them both.

Waiting for an Echo

The Madness of American Incarceration

Christine Montross, M.D.

NOW IN PAPERBACK

Dr. Christine Montross has spent her career treating the most severely ill psychiatric patients. Several years ago, she set out to investigate why so many of her patients got caught up in the legal system when discharged from her care—and what happened to them therein. Waiting for an Echo is a riveting, rarely seen glimpse into American incarceration. It is also a damning account of policies that have criminalized mental illness, shifting large numbers of people who belong in therapeutic settings into punitive ones.

A World Without Police

How Strong Communities Make Cops Obsolete

George Ciccariello-Maher

Tens of millions of people poured onto the streets for Black Lives Matter, bringing with them a wholly new idea of public safety, common security, and the delivery of justice, communicating that vision in the fiery vernacular of riot, rebellion, and protest. A World Without Police transcribes these new ideas—written in slogans and chants, over occupied bridges and hastily assembled barricades—into a compelling, must-read manifesto for police abolition.

Redeeming Justice

From Defendant to Defender, My Fight for Equity on Both Sides of a Broken System

Jarrett Adams

Jarrett Adams was 17 when an all-white jury sentenced him to prison for a crime he didn't commit. Now a pioneering lawyer, he recalls the journey that led to his exoneration—and inspired him to devote his life to fighting the many injustices in our legal system. In this story of hope and redemption, Adams draws on his life and the cases of his clients to provide an unforgettable firsthand account of the limits—and possibilities—of our country's system of law.

Rogues' Gallery

The Birth of Modern Policing and Organized Crime in Gilded Age New York

John Oller

John Oller looks at the history of New York City crime and law enforcement from the early 1870s to 1910. Drawing on a wide range of sources, including state senate investigative hearings, Oller weaves a narrative that presents both the origins of the NYPD and of organized crime.

"Important but forgotten events and characters like the Manhattan Savings Bank robbery, Marm Mandelbaum, Shang Draper, and Arthur Carey have long needed their own historian, and John Oller rises to the occasion."—Timothy Gilfoyle, Professor of History, Loyola University

Let the Lord Sort Them

The Rise and Fall of the Death Penalty

Maurice Chammah

In Let the Lord Sort Them, Maurice Chammah charts the rise and fall of capital punishment through the eyes of those it touched. In tracing the rise of mass incarceration in Texas, where executions were considered part of the cultural fabric and a dark history of lynching was masked by gauzy visions of a tough-on-crime frontier, Chammah explores what the persistence of the death penalty tells us about forgiveness and retribution, fairness and justice, history and myth.

Tangled Up in Blue

Policing the American City

Rosa Brooks

In her forties, with two children, a spouse, a dog, a mortgage, and a full-time job as a tenured law professor at Georgetown University, Rosa Brooks decided to become a cop. A liberal academic with an interest in law's relationship with violence, Brooks wanted the kind of insider experience that would help her understand how police officers make sense of their world. An explosive and groundbreaking investigation, Tangled Up in Blue complicates matters rather than simplifies them, and gives pause both to those who think police can do no wrong—and those who think they can do no right.

Minor Feelings

An Asian American Reckoning

Cathy Park Hong

Poet and essayist Cathy Park Hong fearlessly and provocatively blends memoir, cultural criticism, and history to expose fresh truths about racialized consciousness in America. Binding these essays together is Hong's theory of "minor feelings." As the daughter of Korean immigrants, Cathy Park Hong grew up steeped in shame, suspicion, and melancholy. She would later understand that these "minor feelings" occur when American optimism contradicts your own reality—when you believe the lies you're told about your own racial identity.

With sly humor and a poet's searching mind, Hong uses her own story as a portal into a deeper examination of racial consciousness in America today. This intimate and devastating book traces her relationship to the English language, to shame and depression, to poetry and female friendship. A radically honest work of art, Minor Feelings forms a portrait of one Asian American psyche—and of a writer's search to both uncover and speak the truth.

There's a Revolution Outside, My Love

Letters from a Crisis

Edited by Tracy K. Smith and John Freeman

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Across the country, people are losing their loved ones, their livelihoods, their homes, and even their own lives to COVID-19. Despite the pandemic, countless protests erupted last summer over the recurring loss of Black lives. Reverberations of shock and outrage remain with us all. There's a Revolution Outside, My Love captures and articulates all of these roiling sentiments unleashed by a profound national reckoning. There's a Revolution Outside, My Love offers solace in a time of swirling protest and change.

"These testimonials from professors, poets, novelists and activists are centered on last summer's protests against the police killings of Black people, but they tie connective threads between many countries and their crises. . . . Together this book is a maelstrom of grief, anger, fear and confusion, with glimmers of gratitude and hope: a comprehensive emotional document of a moment."—Sebastian Modak, The New York Times

The Sum of Us

What Racism Costs Everyone
and How We Can Prosper Together

Heather McGhee

Heather McGhee's specialty is the American economy—and the mystery of why it so often fails the American public. From the financial crisis to rising student debt to collapsing public infrastructure, she found a common root problem: racism. But how did we end up here? And is there a way out?

McGhee embarks on a deeply personal journey across the country, tallying what we lose when we buy into the zero-sum paradigm—the idea that progress for some of us must come at the expense of others. But McGhee also finds proof of what she calls the Solidarity Dividend: gains that come when people come together across race, to accomplish what we simply can't do on our own.

The Sum of Us is a brilliant analysis, marshaling economic and sociological research, of how we arrived here. With startling empathy, this heartfelt message from a Black woman to a multiracial America leaves us with a new vision for a future in which we finally realize that life can be more than a zero-sum game.

Finding Latinx

In Search of the Voices
Redefining Latino Identity

Paola Ramos

NEW IN PAPERBACK

In this empowering cross-country travelogue, journalist and activist Paola Ramos embarks on a journey to find the communities of people defining the controversial term, “Latinx.” She introduces us to the indigenous Oaxacans who rebuilt the main street in a post-industrial town in upstate New York, the “Las Poderosas” who fight for reproductive rights in Texas, the musicians in Milwaukee whose beats reassure others of their belonging, as well as drag queens, environmental activists, farmworkers, and the migrants detained at our border. Ramos chronicles how “Latinx” has given rise to a sense of collectivity and solidarity among Latinos unseen in this country for decades.

“Ramos compels us to reconsider our understanding of what it means to belong. . . . Finding Latinx guides readers into a deeper understanding of who we are at our core and on the margins, nuanced identities that compose the great American mosaic.”

Say It Loud!

On Race, Law, History, and Culture

Randall Kennedy

Spanning two decades, Harvard Law School professor Randall Kennedy, one of our preeminent legal scholars and public intellectuals, gives us twenty-nine provocative essays—some previously published, others written for this occasion—that explore key social justice issues of our time. From George Floyd to antiracism to inequality and the Supreme Court, these essays are informed by sharpness of observation and often courting controversy, deep fellow feeling, decency, and wit. In each essay, Kennedy is mindful of complexity, ambivalence, and paradox, and he is always stirring and enlightening. Say It Loud! is a wide-ranging summa of Randall Kennedy's thought on the realities and imaginaries of race in America.

"In these trenchant essays, Kennedy updates previously published pieces that survey hot-button issues and enduring controversies involving race and the law. . . . [A] wide-ranging volume that stoutly defend[s] his centrist stance on race against excesses of the right and left. . . . In a time of polarized racial politics, Kennedy's closely reasoned and humanely argued takes offer an appealing alternative." —Publishers Weekly

Winona Guo and Priya Vulchi

In this inspiring book, Winona Guo and Priya Vulchi recount their experiences talking to people from all walks of life about race and identity on a cross-country tour of America. Spurred by the realization that they had nearly completed high school without hearing any substantive discussion about racism in school, the two young women deferred college admission for a year to collect first-person accounts of how racism plays out in this country every day.

An Immigrant Family's Fortunes

Albert Samaha

Nearing the age at which his mother had migrated to the US in 1965, Albert Samaha began to question whether their decision to abandon a middle-class existence in the Philippines had been worth the cost. Tracing his family's history through the region's unique geopolitical roots in Spanish colonialism, American intervention, and Japanese occupation, Samaha fits their arc into the wider story of global migration as determined by chess moves among superpowers.

"Absolutely extraordinary—a sweeping story of global power and movement, told through the intimate reality of one Filipino family's centuries-long quest for self-determination within the grip of empire."

Between Everything and Nothing

The Journey of Seidu Mohammed and Razak Iyal and the Quest for Asylum

Joe Meno

Ghanaian asylum seekers Seidu Mohammed and Razak Iyal crossed half the world in search of a new home. Forced to flee their homeland, both men embarked on separate odysseys through the dangerous jungles and bureaucracies of South, Central, and North America. Like generations of asylum seekers before, they presented themselves legally at the U.S. border, hoping for sanctuary. Instead, they were imprisoned in private detention facilities, released only after their asylum pleas were denied.

Based on extensive interviews, Joe Meno's intimate account builds upon the international media attention Seidu and Razak's story has already received, highlighting the harrowing journey of asylum seekers everywhere while adding dimension to one of the greatest humanitarian concerns facing the world.

Central America's Forgotten History

Revolution, Violence, and the Roots of Migration

Aviva Chomsky

At the center of the current immigration debate are migrants from Central America fleeing poverty, corruption, and violence in search of refuge in the United States. In Central America's Forgotten History, Aviva Chomsky answers the urgent question "How did we get here?" Centering the centuries-long intertwined histories of US expansion and Indigenous and Central American struggles against inequality and oppression, Chomsky highlights the pernicious cycle of colonial and neocolonial development policies that promote cultures of violence and forgetting without any accountability or restorative reparations.

After the Last Border

Two Families and the Story of Refuge in America

Jessica Goudeau

NOW IN PAPERBACK

Writer and activist Jessica Goudeau tracks the human impacts of America's ever-shifting refugee policy with this intimate look at the lives of two women settling as refugees in Austin, Texas. Mu Naw, a Christian from Myanmar, was accepted at a time when America was at its most open to displaced families; and Hasna, a Muslim from Syria, agrees to relocate as a last resort for the safety of her family—only to be cruelly separated from her children by the travel ban.

Family in Six Tones

A Refugee Mother, an American Daughter

Lan Cao and Harlan Margaret Van Cao

In 1975, 13-year-old Lan Cao boarded an airplane in Saigon and got off in a world where she faced hosts she had not met before, a language she didn't speak, and food she didn't recognize. Four decades later, she faced the biggest challenge in her life: raising her daughter Harlan—half Vietnamese by birth and 100 percent American teenager by inclination. In their lyrical joint memoir, told in alternating voices, mother and daughter cross ages and ethnicities to tackle the hardest questions about assimilation, aspiration, and family.

White Borders

The History of Race and Immigration in the United States from Chinese Exclusion to the Border Wall

Reece Jones

Racist anti-immigration policies, from the border wall to the Muslim ban, have left many Americans wondering: How did we get here? In a sweeping account, Reece Jones reveals that although the US is often mythologized as a nation of immigrants, it has a long history of immigration restrictions that are rooted in racist fears.

"This powerful and meticulously argued book reveals that while immigration crackdowns are justified as protecting jobs and workers, they've always been about saving and protecting the racist idea of a white America."—Ibram X. Kendi, author of How to Be an Antiracist

Not "A Nation of Immigrants"

Settler Colonialism, White Supremacy, and a History of Erasure and Exclusion

Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz

Many Americans will say proudly that we are a nation of immigrants. In this bold new book, renowned historian Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz asserts this ideology is harmful and dishonest because it serves to mask and diminish our history of settler colonialism, genocide, white supremacy, slavery, and structural inequality. This paradigm shifting new book charges that we need to stop believing and perpetuating this simplistic and a historical idea and embrace the more accurate history of the United States.

Entitled

How Male Privilege Hurts Women

Kate Manne

In this bold and stylish critique, Cornell philosopher Kate Manne offers a radical new framework for understanding misogyny. Ranging widely across the culture, from Harvey Weinstein and the Brett Kavanaugh hearings to “Cat Person” and the political misfortunes of Elizabeth Warren, Manne’s book shows how privileged men’s sense of entitlement—to sex, admiration, care, bodily autonomy, knowledge, and power—is a pervasive social problem with often devastating consequences.

In clear, lucid prose, Manne implicates each of us in toxic masculinity: It’s not just a product of a few bad actors; it’s something we all perpetuate, conditioned as we are by the social and cultural mores of our time. The only way to combat it, she says, is to expose the flaws in our default modes of thought while enabling women to take up space, say their piece, and muster resistance to the entitled attitudes of the men around them.

Our Thirty-Year Journey to End Gender Violence

Anita Hill

From the woman who gave the landmark testimony against Clarence Thomas as a sexual menace, Believing is a new manifesto about the origins and course of gender violence in our society; a combination of memoir, personal accounts, law, and social analysis, and a powerful call to arms from one of our most prominent and poised survivors. It is a call to action that offers guidance based on what this brave, committed fighter has learned from a lifetime of advocacy and her search for solutions to a problem that is still tearing America apart.

Feminist City

Claiming Space in a Man-Made World

Leslie Kern

NOW IN PAPERBACK

In Feminist City, through history, personal experience and popular culture Leslie Kern exposes what is hidden in plain sight: the social inequalities built into our cities, homes, and neighborhoods. Kern offers an alternative vision of the feminist city. Taking on fear, motherhood, friendship, activism, and the joys and perils of being alone, Kern maps the city from new vantage points, laying out an intersectional feminist approach to urban histories and proposes that the city is perhaps also our best hope for shaping a new urban future.

Digital Suffragists

Women, the Web, and the Future of Democracy

Marie Tessier

In Digital Suffragists, Marie Tessier—a veteran journalist and a New York Times comment moderator for more than a decade—investigates why women's voices are outnumbered online and what we can do about it. Technologies designed with a broad range of end users in mind, she points out, are more successful and beneficial than those that reflect the designer's own habits of mind. Tessier outlines benchmarks for a more democratic media, all of which stem from one fundamental idea: media must adopt gender and racial representation as key performance indicators.

Fanfiction, Power, and Sexual Consent

Milena Popova

Sexual consent is—at best—a contested topic in Western societies and cultures. In Dubcon, Milena Popova points to a community that has been considering issues of sex, power, and consent for many years: writers and readers of fanfiction. Proposing that fanfiction offers a powerful discursive resistance on issues of rape and consent that challenges dominant discourses about gender, romance, sexuality, and consent, Popova shows that fanfiction functions as a form of cultural activism.

The Engagement

America's Quarter-Century Struggle Over Same-Sex Marriage
Sasha Issenberg

The Engagement is the riveting story of the legal battle over same-sex marriage in the United States.

"Issenberg's impressively wide-ranging interviews allow him to go beyond the familiar story of trailblazing lawyers to give lesser-known campaign consultants due credit for their critical contributions to bringing about a sea-change in America's acceptance of gay equality. Likewise, Issenberg's fair-minded treatment of equality opponents further demonstrates The Engagement will be an enduringly significant work of history."—David J. Anthony DePalma

Anthony DePalma brings modern Cuba alive in a vibrant portrait of a group of families's varied journeys in one community over the last twenty years. In The Cubans, many patriots face one new question: is their loyalty to the revolution, or to their country? As people try to navigate their new reality, Cuba has become an improvised country, an old machine kept running with equal measures of ingenuity and desperation. And over all of this looms the United States, with its unpredictable policies, which warmed towards its neighbor under one administration but whose policies have now taken on a chill reminiscent of the Cold War.

Recovering the Legacy of the Places We've Left Behind

Grace Olmstead

In Emmett, Idaho, there are two kinds of people: those who leave and those who stay. Those who leave go in search of greener pastures, better jobs, and college. Those who stay are left to contend with thinning communities, punishing government farm policy, and environmental decay. Grace Olmstead, now a journalist in Washington, DC, is one who left, and in Uprooted, she examines the consequences. Part memoir, part journalistic investigation, Uprooted wrestles with the questions of what we owe the places we come from and what we are willing to sacrifice for profit and progress.

American Made

What Happens to People
When Work Disappears

Farah Stockman

What happens when Americans lose their jobs? In this illuminating story of ruin and reinvention, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Farah Stockman provides an up-close look at the profound role work plays in our sense of identity and belonging, as she follows three workers whose lives unravel when the factory they have dedicated so much to closes down.

American Made is the story of a community struggling to reinvent itself. It is also a story about race, class, and American values, and how jobs serve as a bedrock of people's lives and drive powerful social justice movements. This revealing book shines a light on this political moment, when joblessness and uncertainty about the future of work have made themselves heard at a national level.

Why What We Wear Matters

Dana Thomas

The clothing industry churns out 80 billion garments a year and employs every sixth person on Earth. Historically, the apparel trade has exploited labor, the environment, and intellectual property—and with the simultaneous unfurling of fast fashion, globalization, and the tech revolution, those abuses have multiplied exponentially. Journalist Dana Thomas has traveled the globe to discover the visionary designers and companies who are propelling the industry toward a more positive future by reclaiming traditional craft and launching cutting-edge sustainable technologies.

How to Avoid a Climate Disaster

The Solutions We Have and the Breakthroughs We Need

Bill Gates

In this urgent, authoritative book, Bill Gates sets out a wide-ranging, practical—and accessible—plan for how the world can get to zero greenhouse gas emissions in time to avoid a climate catastrophe.

"How to Avoid a Climate Disaster is clear, concise on a colossal subject, and intelligently holistic in its approach to the problem. Gates may not be the perfect messenger, but he has written a fine primer on how to get ourselves out of this mess."—Adama Vaughan, New Scientist

Oak Flat

A Fight for Sacred Land in the American West

Lauren Redniss

Oak Flat is a mesa above the southeastern Arizona desert, near the San Carlos Apache Indian Reservation. For the tribe, Oak Flat is a holy place. But when a copper reserve is discovered nearby, a private company threatens to wipe Oak Flat off the map. Redniss's deep reporting and haunting artwork anchor this mesmerizing human narrative of the saga of westward expansion, the resistance and resilience of Native peoples, and the efforts of profiteers to control the land.

Hooked

Food, Free Will, and How the Food Giants Exploit Our Addictions

Michael Moss

Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter Michael Moss uses the latest research on addiction to uncover what the scientific and medical communities already know: that food, in some cases, is even more addictive than alcohol, cigarettes, and drugs. A gripping account of the legal battles, insidious marketing campaigns, and cutting-edge food science that have brought us to our current public health crisis, Hooked lays out all that the food industry is doing to exploit and deepen our addictions, and shows us why what we eat has never mattered more.

Extreme Measures

Finding a Better Path to the End of Life

Jessica Nutik Zitter, MD

Extreme Measures charts Dr. Jessica Zitter's journey from wanting to be one kind of hero to becoming another—a doctor who prioritizes the patient's values and preferences in an environment where the default choice is the extreme use of technology. In our current medical culture, the old and the ill are put on what she terms the End-of-Life Conveyor belt. In her work Zitter has learned what patients fear more than death itself: the prospect of dying badly. She builds bridges between patients and caregivers, formulates plans to allay patients' pain and anxiety, and enlists the support of loved ones so that life can end well, even beautifully.

Extra Life

A Short History of Living Longer

Steven Johnson

As a species we have doubled our life expectancy in just one hundred years. A study in how meaningful change happens in society, Extra Life is an ode to the enduring power of common goals and public resources. The most fundamental progress we have experienced over the past few centuries has not come from big corporations or start-ups. It has come, instead, from activists struggling for reform; from university-based and publicly funded scientists sharing their findings open-source-style; and from nonprofit agencies spreading new innovations around the world.

Disability Visibility

First-Person Stories from the Twenty-First Century

Edited by Alice Wong

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Alice Wong brings together this urgent collection of contemporary essays by disabled people. From Harriet McBryde Johnson's account of her debate with Peter Singer over her own personhood to original pieces by authors like Keah Brown and Haben Girma, and beyond: this anthology gives a glimpse into the rich complexity of the disabled experience.

"If we're going to talk about diversity in earnest then we must acknowledge the contributors in Alice Wong's anthology and how their essays encapsulate intersectional dialogue, intellectual thought, and intimate details. Disability Visibility is the perfect name for this collection because the authors words resound loudly and deserve to be heard. . . . This book is a celebration and a source of deep education for many to bear witness (and feel seen by) the vastness of disabled stories, voices, and backgrounds."—Jennifer Baker, editor of Everyday People: The Color of Life—A Short Story Anthology

Being Heumann

An Unrepentant Memoir
of a Disability Rights Activist

Judith Heumann

Paralyzed from polio at eighteen months, Judy Heumann's struggle for equality began early in life. From fighting to attend grade school after being described as a "fire hazard" to later winning a lawsuit against the New York City school system for denying her a teacher's license because of her paralysis, Judy's actions set a precedent that fundamentally improved rights for disabled people.

As a young woman, Judy rolled her wheelchair through the doors of the US Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in San Francisco as a leader of the Section 504 Sit-In. Working with a community of over 150 disabled activists and allies, Judy successfully pressured the Carter administration to implement protections for disabled peoples' rights, sparking a national movement and leading to the creation of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Demystifying Disability

What to Know, What to Say, and How to Be an Ally

Emily Ladau

People with disabilities are the world's largest minority, an estimated 15 percent of the global population. But many of us—disabled and nondisabled alike—don't know how to act, what to say, or how to be an ally to the disability community. Authored by celebrated disability rights advocate, speaker, and writer Emily Ladau, this practical, intersectional guide offers all readers a welcoming place to understand disability as part of the human experience.

Golden Gates

The Housing Crisis and a Reckoning for the American Dream

Conor Dougherty

Journalist Conor Dougherty chronicles America's housing crisis from its West Coast epicenter, peeling back the decades of history and economic forces that brought us here. Spacious and affordable homes used to be the hallmark of American prosperity, but today, punishing rents and the increasingly prohibitive cost of ownership have turned housing into the foremost symbol of inequality. Nowhere is this more visible than in the San Francisco Bay Area, where fleets of private buses ferry software engineers past the tarp-and-plywood shanties where the homeless make their homes.

"How do we solve a problem like California, with its three-hour commutes and sky-high rents? Deeply reported and fast-paced, Golden Gates introduces you to the people fighting for and against affordable housing in one of the world's hottest real estate markets. In following the clashes between political leaders, tenant activists, developers, and working families, Dougherty brings a novel perspective to one of the nation's most urgent problems."

—Matthew Desmond, author of Evicted

What Can a Body Do?

How We Meet the Built World

Sara Hendren

In a series of vivid stories drawn from the lived experience of disability and the ideas and innovations that have emerged from it—from cyborg arms to customizable cardboard chairs to deaf architecture—Sara Hendren invites us to rethink the things and settings we live with. What might assistance based on the body's stunning capacity for adaptation—rather than a rigid insistence on "normalcy"—look like? By rendering familiar objects and environments newly strange and wondrous, What Can a Body Do? helps us imagine a future that will better meet the extraordinary range of our collective needs and desires.

Just Housing

The Moral Foundations of American Housing Policy

Casey J. Dawkins

In response to the twin crises of homelessness and housing insecurity, an emerging "housing justice" coalition argues that America's apparent inability to provide decent housing for all is a moral failing. In a wide-ranging examination of these issues, Casey Dawkins chronicles the concept of housing justice, investigates the moral foundations of the US housing reform tradition, and proposes a new conception of housing justice that is grounded in moral principles that appeal to the home's special connection to American life.

Survival of the City

Living and Thriving in an Age of Isolation

Edward Glaeser and David Cutler

Cities can make us sick. They always have—diseases spread more easily when more people are close to one another. During the global COVID crisis, cities grew silent as people worked from home—if they could work at all. While Edward Glaeser and David Cutler believe that city life will survive, our current crisis has exposed fearful gaps in our capacity for good urban governance. In America, they argue, deep inequities in health care and education are a particular blight on the future of our cities; solving them will be the difference between our collective good health and a downward spiral to a much darker place.

We've all had to fight our way through administrative sludge—filling out complicated online forms, mailing in paperwork, standing in line at the motor vehicle registry. This kind of red tape is a nuisance, but, as Cass Sunstein shows in Sludge, it can also impair health, reduce growth, entrench poverty, and exacerbate inequality. Confronted by sludge, people just give up—and lose a promised outcome: a visa, a job, a permit, an educational opportunity, necessary medical help. In this insightful look at the tenaciousness of sludge, Sunstein explains what we can do to reduce it.
